This workshop will bring together representatives from different ERICs and the EIROForum to share practical examples of how Research Infrastructures are contributing to the green and digital transition, as well as funders and policy makers to discuss opportunities and expectations.

The first session will showcase best practices, current initiatives, available tools and services, common challenges, and existing and possible areas for collaboration. The panel discussion will provide an opportunity to identify how ERICs and large RIs (e.g. EIROForum) can strengthen their collective contribution to European sustainability and resilience objectives and explore related funding opportunities.
